WILKINSON FOUND.

He was at Carson City, Nevada,

Yesterday Morning.

WAS TRACED IN A NOVEL WAY.

Manager Tracy, of the Western Union Telegraph Office, used the wires to discover the whereabouts and with success--The Mystery of His Leaving Just as Great as Ever--He was on His Way to California to Visit His Brother, Herbert, and a Telegram Betrayed Him.

Howard P. Wilkinson, secretary of the West Virginia Tobacco Company and a very well known expert accountant, auditor of the city water board and formerly auditor of the gas board, who disappeared from the city a week ago last night under the most mysterious circumstances, was located late Thursday night. He had been gone just a week, and was found at Carson City, Nevada. He had sent a telegram to his brother Herbert Wilkinson, at Independence, Cal., where the latter is government weather observer, and this telegram led to the revealing of his identity. The directors and officials of the tobacco company here were very anxious to find him if alive, or his body if dead, not, they explain, because they had any financial interest in his disappearance, but as an employee and a friend of all the people about the works, they wished to allay the suspicions of his wife and family and be satisfied personally as well as to where he had gone and as to his mental condition. Manager Tracy, of the Western Union Telegraph Company here, was called into the case and given carte blanche to use the wires to find the missing man. He had telegraphed a description of Mr. Wilkinson everywhere that it was thought possible he might be found. The name Howard P. Wilkinson, signed to a telegram, was the first thing to show his identity. Mr. Tracy had been "keeping the wires hot" for several days in the effort to trace him. The message which first seemed to offer a clue was received yesterday morning at 2 o'clock, but not being very definite, Mr. Tracy telegraphed again. He received from Carson City yesterday forenoon a telegram which left no doubt whatever that the man there was the right person.

Mr. Wilkinson had expected to reach Independence to see his brother by yesterday, but being delayed, telegraphed that he would not reach there till Friday. The story that he telegraphed from Wheeling before his departure his intention to visit his brother is a mistake. The belief, though not yet thoroughly confirmed, is that he went from Bridgeport to Martin's Ferry Friday night on an electric car and there took the Wheeling & Lake Erie train for the city. The story that he had a release book on the Wheeling & Lake Erie in his possession. His brothers had suspected that he might have gone to New Jersey to visit an aunt of whom he thought a great deal, and who is very old, or to California to see his brother Herbert. Why he should go so suddenly as he did, telling nobody in the family, is as much a mystery as ever. There is still no definite explanation of his departure, but if he is in his right mind there must have been a reason for his departure, which has not yet come out.

COL. CROFTON'S NERVE.

Refuses an Invitation to Retire and Depends on Political Influence.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—An autograph letter has been sent to Col. H. E. M. Crofton, United States America, from Secretary Lamont, requesting him to apply for retirement on the ground that the many scandals in his regiment have indicated a lack of discipline in the regiment. The President is very much annoyed and would be gratified if Col. Crofton will retire.

Col. Crofton has decided to refuse to retire, basing his refusal, it is said, on the friendship of his nephew, Mr. Dupont, of Delaware, who claims the election of United States senator from that state, and who expects to be shortly elected by the senate. This, it is thought, will give him much influence to maintain his position.

Storm in the East.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—A severe storm of wind, rain and sleet is prevailing in the east to-day. Telegraphic communication between this city and points in the New England states is almost suspended. Along the coast the wind has a velocity of from 40 to 50 miles an hour since midnight, and is expected to continue. Thus far no disasters to shipping are reported.

Big Sleet Storm.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 24.—A sleet storm passed over this section, early this morning. The local weather bureau reports the storm center moving eastward, followed by colder weather and heavy snow along the lakes. At noon the sleet changed to snow. The Anti-Trust Law.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Attorney General Maloney will to-morrow begin quo warranto proceedings under the anti-trust law in the circuit court against the Illinois Steel Company, on the ground that in consolidating with the Joliet Steel Company, it over-reached its corporate power.

Probably Not True.

BELLAIRE.

All Sorts of Local News and Gossip from the Glass City.

There was a shooting scrape in a saloon on Union street, kept by colored men, yesterday, and "Mess" Crawford received a bullet in the fleshy part of the leg near the hip. It seems that Crawford and a companion went into the saloon and got a drink. Frank Jackson and Charley White, two colored chaps, were cutting up. Jackson had a revolver and says he went to shoot it off behind White to scare him. However this may be, Crawford was just going out of the door when the gun went off and he stopped the ball and fell to the pavement with a cry of pain. Naturally enough it created a good deal of excitement, and Marshal Bahr arrested everybody in the saloon and marched them to the city building, but when he learned the facts he released all but Jackson. The fellow who did the shooting is a colored roustabout who does odd jobs of cleaning saloons, etc. In the morning, for a woman he was sober and the accident was the result of his foolish handling of a revolver he happened to have. Crawford is not thought to be dangerously hurt, though the wound is serious.

Congressman Pearson and Hon. J. P. Spriggs are at Columbus to argue a case in the supreme court to-day regarding tax on oil operators raised by reason of the auditor and treasurer of Monroe county placing the property of a number of operators in that county on the tax duplicate. It is a nice question under the law as it now is; so nicely drawn as to leave plenty of room for both sides to feel confident of their positions. A bill has been presented in the legislature specifically naming this class of property to be placed upon the tax duplicate, which in itself is evidence of the doubt that exists as to whether it can be taxed now or not.

Mr. Israel Moredock, of Iowa, a cousin of Mrs. Martin Cowen, was a guest at the Cowen home yesterday. He has held a government position in his state for years, and is in close touch with the political sentiment of his state, which he says is for McKinley for President. Mr. Moredock is a brother-in-law of Bishop Thoburn.

The county commissioners have figured that the courts in this county cost $20,000 a year. The last grand jury, and it was the cheapest one for some time, cost $1,500 by reason of the multitude of witnesses sent before it.

The friends of the late John W. Hoover will have his death investigated by the coroner. It was the intention to have this done sometime ago, but it was prevented by the quarantine. The deceased was a brother of Elijah Hoover. The death occurred on the Lloyd farm back of Bridgeport.

Rev. A. W. Butts, formerly of Martin's Ferry, was burned by an explosion in the grocery of Thomas Atkinson at East Palestine. Atkinson threw a can of spoiled gooseberries into the stove, which caused an explosion and the stove was demolished, burning Dr. Butts and others.

A bill has been introduced in the Ohio legislature making it a misdemeanor to place tacks, broken glass, nails, etc., on highways and fixing a fine of $5 to $50. This is in the interest of bicycle riders.

The Oriental Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar Club, which played at the former institute at Colrain, was handsomely entertained at the home of Mr. Benjamin White.

SPEAKER REED'S RULES.

Once Denounced as Tyrannical, Now Accepted by All Parties as in the Interest of the Public Business--The Nation's Debt of Gratitude.

New York Morning Advertiser: Americans make history rapidly. When on Saturday Speaker Reed counted a quorum in the house of representatives in order to demonstrate the fact that enough members were present for the transaction of public business, his act attracted little attention or comment. Yet to establish the precedent which enabled the speaker to perform this essential duty one of the fiercest struggles in parliamentary records on this side of the Atlantic was necessary. Only half a dozen years ago "Reed's" rules and the right of the presiding officer of the house to count a quorum when representatives actually in their seats refused to vote, were the theme of exciting discussion from Maine to California. It is well for the busy American public at this juncture to recall what the victory of the speaker in the Fifty-first Congress meant.

The battles which mold a nation's history are not all fought in the field. Gettysburg was the turning point in the Titanic struggle which established forever the unity of the American republic. More than a quarter of a century afterward it was necessary to win another Gettysburg in the halls of Congress to vindicate and fortify the constitutional right of the majority to rule. When Thomas B. Reed took the speaker's chair in the Fifty-first Congress he found a narrow Republican majority and a compact, defiant, vindictive Democratic minority whose leaders—chiefly southern Bourbon—had deliberately resolved to nullify the Republican triumph in the national election of 1888.

By skillful filibustering, by "speaking against time" on irrelevant subjects, by refusing to vote when a bill was before the house and thus raising the point of "no quorum," these men repudiated by the country at the polls, proposed to block the enactment of Republican legislation, to reduce the house to chaos and anarchy, and to defy absolutely the legally expressed will of the people. Their conspiracy differed in method, but not in spirit, from the earlier armed attempt of the south to defeat and demolish majority rule in the United States. If it had succeeded it would have overridden the explicit purpose of the constitution. It would have made Congress impotent to obey the popular mandate. It would have degraded representative government on this continent into a shameful farce.

It did not succeed because Reed grappled with the detestable conspiracy and throttled it. Democratic organs in every portion of the Union assailed the fearless speaker with frantic abuse, described him as a "Caesar," a "tyrant" and a public enemy. Democratic members of Congress threw aside all restraints of decency and denounced him in the house with savage vituperation. Half-hearted Republicans stood aghast at the storm and timidly suggested a compromise. But the speaker knew that compromise was impossible. He saw that the hour had come when the inalienable right of the majority to govern must be decisively enforced or disgracefully surrendered. Realizing the importance of the crisis, he stood for Americanism and justice with the firmness of adamant.

He was not unfair. Even those who were his bitterest opponents then admit that now. He was not arbitrary except when obedience to his oath of office plainly required stern measures. But he declared in the name of the American people and of the constitution of the United States that no clique of men representing a beaten minority should indefinitely block the course of legislation. While allowing ample latitude for legitimate debate, he cut short the dishonest device of endless declaiming for the purpose of consuming time. By counting a quorum when a quorum was in sight he put an end to the absurd fiction that a member of Congress was in his seat in the present unless he chose to record his vote. The establishment on an impregnable basis of the vital principle of majority rule in the house of representatives was the result.

For that result—a triumph of momentous consequence to American institutions present and future—this nation owes a hearty debt of gratitude to Thomas B. Reed. The service which he rendered to the cause of popular government is one which it would be hard to overestimate. And his public record since that time bears witness that the speaker of the Fifty-fourth house is a broader and more thoroughly equipped statesman than even the speaker of the Fifty-first.

IT'S about as hard to break some people of bad habits as it is to break Malaria Fever when it once gets a firm hold upon one. Mr. C. Himrod, of Lancaster, Ohio, says, "Simmons Liver Regulator broke a case of Malaria Fever of three years standing for me, and less than one bottle did the business. I shall use it when in need of any medicine, and I recommend it."
